

ABSTRACT

A portable communication apparatus has a camera section for capturing an image depending on an operation of a shutter key and a character recognition section for recognizing characters from an captured image. A character-size
5, adjustment indicator is provided on the display. The character-size adjustment indicator has a size which provides a sufficiently high success rate in character recognition when at least one character included in the captured image fits into the reference frame.